

ABSTRACT

A gene detection system for detecting a target gene upon hybridization with a probe comprising a probe-immobilizing support on which a probe is immobilized, and heating and cooling means disposed in contact with another location different from the surface of the probe-immobilizing support on which the probe is immobilized, whereby genes can be rapidly detected with high sensitivity through hybridization.

20050608 052002